Imperial Miniatures Price List

We produce fine, true 54mm Toy Soldiers which are sold as painted boxed sets or in vignettes or as castings. They are intended for the adult collector, may contain lead and are not intended for children.

The majority of our figures come from the "All the Queen's Men" ranges which were produced by Derek Cross until he retired in 2007 and which we acquired in stages from April 2015 to September 2018. Please note that we are still cataloguing castings and moulds and it may take time to make new moulds or resin items to produce the larger dioramas.

Figures can be supplied as gloss or matt finish.

We also supply castings of our figures which are normally priced at £5.50 for a foot figure and £14.50 for mounted. Please enquire for guns, equipment, etc

(NOTE: TB codes are AQM figures, IM are new AQM compatible Imperial Miniatures, IML are slightly larger 60mm Imperial Miniatures)

	PART 5 These four remaining guardsmen together with the mounted Colonel finally complete the vignette.	£100	£50
V93	' THE THIN RED LINE ' - BALACLAVA 1854

Imperial Miniatures Price List

Sir Colin Campbell ordered the 93rd to retire and lie down behind the crest of the high ground which they occupied. The Russian cavalry advanced towards the British to attack cavalry and artillery, Sir Colin ordered the 93rd to stand up, deploy into two lines and move forward. The Russian cavalry, seeing the redcoated infantry ..... ‘That thin red streak tipped with a line of steel’ { William Russell, war correspondent } at once charged towards them. As the Russians came within range the 93rd fired two volleys into the incoming cavalry as they were about 250 yards away.

Part one ..... consists of eleven figures Officer, Sergeant and other characters including wounded as portrayed by the artist. Fitting together by our unique system of interlocking bases	£165	£66
Part two ..... is a continuation of the Regimental line. Twelve Highlanders all different personalities having fired the first two volleys, stand firm and await a further onslaught from the Russian cavalry who have reeled back in confusion.	£180	£72
Part three ..... features Sir Colin Campbell, commanding Highland Brigade and Colonel of the 93rd both mounted on horseback, Drummer boy, Brigade Major, Ensigns with Regimental and Queen’s Colours plus all interlocking pieces to fit parts 1, 2 and 4.	£140	£65
Part Four ..... The final part to complete this vignette consists of twelve Highlanders standing in line including a Sergeant and Colour Sergeant plus two further figures – an Officer and a Pipe Major, making fourteen overall.	£192	£84

	Officer and his Sergeant. The front rank in Kneel Fire position, second rank Standing Fire, Loading and At Ready, one wounded and one dead Guardsman ..... And a not overly amused farmyard hen. All on it's own base designed to butt up against Part 1, but equally capable of display by itself.
TB382	DEFENCE OF HOUGOUMONT Part 3 THE FRENCH ATTACK ' Emerging from the copse, the infantry of Jerome Napoleon's division fling themselves against the wall pierced with loopholes from which their attack suffered heavy losses. They tried repeatedly to force their way through the gates, during the attack Colonel Cubieres was mortally wounded. Lieutenant Legros managed to force his way through only to be exterminated by the garrison. Part 3 ..... Voltiguers sharp shooting at the loopholes whilst Grenadiers advance. Complete with its scenic base that butts up to the rear of Part 1 it consists of seventeen infantry figures in various advancing and firing positions. The mounted Colonel reels from the saddle mortally wounded. A Voltigeur, his grapple hook secured attempts to scale the wall; another is about to cast his.....	£350	£120

The 3rd Regiment Chasseurs a Pied of the Imperial Guard marched up the slope towards the Allied position, drums were beating the ' pas de charge' and with arms presented and the Eagles lifted high they marched with measured step as if on parade. At this time no man in the British Foot Guards was visible to the advancing French. They had been ordered to lie down in the thick wheat on the reverse side of the slope, under the crest of the ridge. As the advancing columns neared the Duke shouted, " Now Maitland! Now's your time", and the Foot Guards stood up as one man, before the French could properly deploy, they fired volley after volley into the dense enemy mass with devastating effect. For some time the bewildered French remained almost stationary under this murderous fusillade. Maitland, then ordered the 1st Foot Guards to charge with the bayonet forcing the French down the slope in confusion.  Consists of eighteen Guardsmen of the Grenadier company deployed in line in two ranks, Officer, Sergeant and side drummer. The Duke of Wellington is mounted on Copenhagen , shouting his famous order to Sir Peregrine Maitland who is shown mounted on his favorite hunter. The terrain features part of the crest, with its trampled wheat and slope falling towards the oncoming French. VKGD	– 2nd KING'S GERMAN DRAGOONS at GARCIA HERNANDEZ 1812	£200	£60

In 1803, seeking to strike at the British but thwarted by the Royal Navy's command of the English Channel, Napoleon sent an army corps to occupy the King of England's Hanoverian electorate, over which Britain's dynasty reigned, and forced her to adopt neutrality. The consequence of this particular aggression was a continual movement of men from the former Hanoverian Army to England, where they were formed as the King's German Legion. When the French invaded Portugal in the summer of 1810 for the third time, Wellington's rearguards held off Massena and his army, falling back in good order to Lisbon and the Lines of Torres Vedres. During this period the KGL were constantly on duty screening the rearguard, manning outposts, and gaining a reputation as superb horsemen and swordsmen during many clashes with enemy cavalry. During the winter of 1811-1812, Wellington successfully took the fortresses of Ciudad Rodrigo and Badajoz and advanced into Spain with an army of 50,000 men. In late June the Allies drove in the defences at Salamanca and occupied the city. It was the first Spanish city to be liberated from the French.

Next morning the pursuit was taken up by the KGL Dragoons led by Von Bock. They were to achieve lasting fame and the admiration of the Allied armies when, near the village of Garcia Hernandez, they attacked and destroyed French cavalry and several battalions of infantry in square.

During the charge on a large square of elements of the French 6th Light Infantry which had ranks of men kneeling and standing with levelled bayonets, a loose horse was shot and fell thrashing in agony and scattering the French. Rittmeister Von Usslar Gleichen saw this chaos and led his cheering squadron through the gap and in minutes destroyed the square, hacking down those who resisted and capturing the rest.

Features the wounded horse and rider pinning down an unfortunate victim, another mounted Dragoon is in the act of breaking the square and scattering the French 6th Light Infantry in all directions. The seven French and two mounted Dragoons fit together as a vignette with our unique interlocking bases.
